Investment Risks

Fixed income securities are subject to interest rate risks. The principal value of a bond falls when interest rates rise and rise when interest rates fall. During periods of rising interest rates, the value of a bond investment is at greater risk than during periods of stable or falling rates. Short-term investment-grade bonds offer less risk and generally a lower rate of return than longer-term higher yielding bonds. Bond funds will tend to experience smaller fluctuations in value than stock funds. However, investors in any bond fund should anticipate fluctuations in price, especially for longer-term issues and in environments of changing interest rates. High-yield bonds have a higher risk of default or other adverse credit events, but have the potential to pay higher earnings over investment-grade bonds. The higher risk of default, or the inability of the creditor to repay its debt, is the primary reason for the higher interest rates on high-yield bonds.

Important Disclosures

¹ The 30-day SEC Yield is calculated by dividing the net investment income per share for the 30 days ended on the date of calculation by the offering price per share on that date. The figure is calculated according to a formula set by the SEC which requires use of a specific methodology for calculating dividends and interest earned, and expenses accrued, during the period. The standardized computation is designed to facilitate yield comparisons among different funds. Certain fund expenses may have been waived or reimbursed. Had waivers and reimbursements not been in effect, the SEC yields would have been 3.04% for A Shares, 3.12% for Investor Shares and 3.37% for Institutional Shares.

² The Bloomberg Barclays U.S. Aggregate Bond Index covers the USD-denominated, investment-grade, fixed rate, taxable bond market of SEC-registered securities. The index is unmanaged and does not reflect the deduction of the expenses associated with a mutual fund, such as investment management and fund accounting fees. The Fund's performance reflects the deduction of fees for these services, but does not reflect the deduction of taxes that a shareholder would pay on fund distributions or the redemption of fund shares. Investors cannot invest directly in an index.

³ Since December 31, 2017.

⁴ Turnover Ratio is a measure of trading activity for a rolling 12-month period represented by the percentage of a fund's assets that have changed over the course of the time period. Duration measures bond price volatility by measuring the length of a bond.
